FRENCH PACKET REVIEW

Our French mail-bag takes so little of interest, as hardly to merit a review for the fortnight. We will briefly recapitulate:—

1st. The disappearance of M. Caumartin, a French merchant of 35 years standing, with liabilities estimated at £24,000 sterling: last week it was, however, ascertained that he neither fled nor committed suicide, but offers to give himself up, on certain terms.

2nd. The murder of Mr. Denholm, near Paysandu, by a gaucho, who came to rob the house, under pretext of asking for a glass of water; the ruffian also wounded the widow and children of his victim, but not dangerously. He was pursued by some friends and servants of deceased, and at once shot.

3rd. The commission of more than 50 highway robberies, or burglaries, in some cases accompanied with murder in the suburbs of Buenos Ayres, during the last fortnight. Flores is the head-quarters of the banditti, and although seven have been arrested, no serious check is effected, the outrages continuing daily.

4th. The news from the San Juan mines has caused increased confidence. Some good veins are being worked in Castano; five boxes of metals arrived at Mercedes, besides 20 'cargas' at Hilario. The ores were lighted on March 19th, at Major Rickard's new factory, to burn 250 quintals of ore, and all went well: the refining furnace will be ready to work this month, and the Buenos Ayrean shareholders are requested to pay a third call (25 per cent.) in order to provide funds for purchasing metals.

5th. The active prosecution of the Great Southern, the Western, and the Bera Railway works.

LATEST FROM CORRIENTES

GREAT EXCITEMENT

MILITARY MUTINY

On Saturday, the 2nd inst., one of those unhappy mutinies, which, we regret to say, too often occur in these countries, took place in Corrientes, causing the greatest alarm in the town, and resulting in the death of some 20 to 30 Correntinos.

It appears that the National Government had given orders to Colonel Lezica, who was stationed in Corrientes, to bring his regiment to Buenos Ayres, and for this purpose had sent the steamer of de Mayo up to Corrientes. On Saturday, the day in question, it was known that the soldiers were to embark, and Lezica, knowing the feeling of his troops, had given orders the day previously to disarm the men. On Saturday morning the whole corps rose en masse (with the exception of a guard of 60 armed men), and refused to embark, alleging that as they were not soldiers of the line, or regularly enlisted, they had no obligation to leave their houses and families: thus ensued a scene which baffles description. The greater part of the soldiers were married. A crowd of females outside the barrack, and some mutinous soldiers within, placed Colonel Lezica and his guard in rather an ugly predicament. He, however, on the authority of the Captain of the Port of Corrientes, that Colonel Lezica, when he heard of the outbreak, immediately sbeddaddled ; the sergeant-major, however, remained at his post, and finding all expostulation fruitless, ordered his guard to fire on the mutineers. He fired in 09 all sides, like the Tamelukes there was no alternative but to surrender or fight. The men made a rush on the guard, and the rest is soon told. With the exception of some 20 to 30 shot down, the rest escaped, and were accompanied in triumph to their homes by hundreds of weeping Correntines. Meanwhile, nobody could find the valiant colonel, and the sub ordinate officer marched his guard on board, and took his compe of Correntes; it was well he did so, for we have before that measures were being taken to secure ample vengeance, which, by the celerity of the guard's departure, were defeated.

Corrientes, on Thursday last, when the Paraguay steamer passed up, presented the appearance of a town lately revolutionised than anything else; the mutineers were to be met with in every street, and the utmost anxiety prevailed respecting to person we which way were the sympathies of the people.

We regret to say that several corpses have been discovered in the river, and it is pretty generally believed, that by order the most number of those shot down will not be known, as many of the dies were launched into the Paraua. The Indians from the Gran Chacho, as they call the other shore, went with the floating dead soldiers, and have brought some ten or twelve to Corrientes.

We will not take upon ourself to judge of the expediency of the step which caused this mutin, but we do most unhesitatingly say that there is a decided sympathy for the unfortunate people in the provinces to be dragged from their homes and forced to serve as soldiers in the ranks of Mitre, whose hopes we may entertain that the provinces will produce hides, wool, silver, copper, and cotton, it is a delusion to think that they will ever find any soldiers; except to march on Buenos Ayres for the purposes of either emancipation or subjection, the 'pronuncios,' no matter who may be President, can never be forced to leave his home, and it speaks volumes to prove how little the President has of the feeling of unity of the Buenos Ayres when he gives such an order to such a colonel to carry out.

Resistance a different thing to Government, the people of the provinces may yet be brought to learn that they owe allegience to the President, no matter who he may be, but as to pressing a man, we doubt if five leagues north of Rosario a recluse could be got to join the National Government before the Provincial authorities.

There is too much of the imperium in imperio in the River Plate, and sooner or later a conflict between the foreign and foreign views of Argentine matters are the soundest and the best.

We have heard it said that the meeting in Corrientes has been effected by crude paper dollars, but candidly speaking we do, not believe such to be the fact. If it be so, the most unfortunate is, the Correntino soldiers did not want to go to Buenos Ayres, and the National Government was not able to force them. We opine there should be nothing more made of the matter, as any attempt on the part of the National Government to force the Provincial soldiers by means of the Provincial authorities, may possibly lead to sinister consequences. The National Government have received a rather staggering lesson. We hope President Mitre will profit by it.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Bolsa robbery mentioned in another column is more remarkable for the audacity of the feat, and insecurity felt for property, than for the amount actually stolen. It is a strange coincidence that the thief of Police Inspector Bolsa on Saturday, and the place was robbed same night. Verily, "coming events cast their shadows before."

The news from Montevideo, Saturday, 9th inst., is unimportant. It was rumored here that Flores had again appeared before the city, but we learn he is about 28 leagues off. The Una has not as last arrived. We hear of no later European news by the Don Diego.

The Report of the Maua Bank (Montevideo) in another column, shows what an immense business this establishment is doing. The house in this city is no less active: the Maua Savings Bank has opened more than 1100 accounts since Oct. 1st, 1863.

On Sunday we paid a visit to the Irish College, San José de Flores. The able director, Doctor Fitzsimons, aided by Mr. D. Hearne, late of Trinity College, Dublin), has inaugurated a first-class educational establishment, in the finest house of the place. The edifice has 45 yards frontage, and gardens 150 yards deep. The study-halls, dormitories, and refectory are spacious apartments, capable of accommodating a large number of boys. There are at present 30 inmates (all Irish), and 20 day pupils (mostly natives).

Mr. Brill, 194 Reconquista, has finished binding the last vol. of Godey's Lady's Book, an interesting monthly American publication, beautifully illustrated, which we will review to-morrow. Mr. B. has 25 copies on hand, and only subscribers at $80 per annum.

To-morrow we shall probably have the Mersey with Southampton mails March 9th. Our Supplement will be sent round to subscribers' houses in the forenoon.

Mr. Wheelwright has had the kindness to send us, through Mr. Gowland, a map showing the companies we have in Ensenitada and Glasgow as a shipping port. The odds are decidedly in favor of the former, and much renouned as is the Clyde, we have greater facilities in a harbour near hand, comparatively unknown, but estimated by Mr. Wheelwright to be capable of holding, with ease, 1000 vessels.

The Saintonge leaves this evening for Europe: among her passengers is the eminent Paraguyan naturalist, Don Carlos Saguier, who is about to make a tour of the Continent, and to whom we wish pleasant trails, in return for his kindness to ourself when visiting his native country.

It is declared that M. Caumartin sent bills on Europe, by last packet, to the amount of £16,000 sterling, some of which the drawers have to pay, inasmuch as he has not escaped. We should like to know what they think of the sentimental humbug of the 'Tribuna' about non-responsibility. Our colleague is a little elastic.

We have learned further particulars of Wm. Drakeford's tragic end. The assassin was a very powerful fellow, and on gaining admission to the house, killed the servant girl, and then, in the groin, slashed the children's foreheads with his knife, and sacked the house. In the pursuit, next day, one of the neighbours, Mr. Carroll, who is an athletic young man, came on him asleep, and succeeded in removing his knife, but the ruffian, making grapple with his antagonist (who was armed with a pistol) and would have over powered him had not aid promptly come enabling the latter to effect the most useful system (in such cases), Lynchlaw.

We call special attention to the new Agency for shipping seamen and providing stevedores and laborers for vessels in port, loading or unloading. Agency, Hotel de la Paix. Mr. Lee is known to our shipping community, and promise to afford great convenience to mercantile interests in general.

'LA STRANIERA.'

The new opera has been a great success. On Saturday evening the theatre presented a respectable house, there being at least 1300 persons present. This opera, we understand, has been placed on our boards for the first time, and therefore we had no parties to make it a favorite at first sight: as the scenery, decorations &c. were new, the orchestra was in full strength, and the chorus much improved.

'In Straniera' in a fine dramatic piece set to music by the immortal composer of Norma and Sonnanbula: the incidents are strikingly romantic, and the thread of the plot well maintained until its tragic denouement.

Act 1st opens with a brilliant scene of rejoicing at the lake and village of Montolino (Brettagne), for Isolotta (Mollo) the heiress of the baronial chateau, is about to be espoused to Arthur, Count of Ravenstel (Lelmi.) The illuminated castle and village, and gay goodsips on the lake, have a pretty effect, while the serenade 'Vaga rosa, il vento tace,' is sung alternately by men and women. The next scene is in the castle, where Isolotta and Baron Valdeburg (Celestino); the former fears that Arthur's affections have been estranged by La Straniera. Mollo's singing of 'Ogni speme' is admirable. Valdeburg consoles her ('come presto) with a promise to bring Arthur back, and the chorus sing 'Quel, 'L'Aurora della vita,' closes the scene. Lelmi opened scene VI. very weakly, but his singing and acting of 'Sventurato' was beautiful, and the closing 'adalo' elicited applause.

Act 2nd reveals a hunting expedition in which Odoardo and Arturo get separate from the rest, in order to track Arturo to the Straniera's cabin. The chorus excited in 'Qui sono voci' and the audience called out Signor Pittaluga, the scene painter, to express their appreciation of his talents. Valdeburg in vain entreats Arturo to give up his mysterious love, when she rushes on the scene, and the baron suddenly recognises her as the discarded Valentine, but the latter enjoins him to be silent. Arturo's jealousy is aroused, and the duel with Nani, his rival, with pathetic effect. Valdeburg and Alaide retire, leaving Arturo a prey to doubt, when the hunters re-appear, and engage him with chorus and song. As Valdeburg comes out of Alaide's cabin, he witnesses their tender adieu, and waylays the former, challenging him to mortal combat. They cross swords, but Valdeburg is soon wounded, retreating towards the cliff, and falls into the lake. Alaide rushes out at the noise, and is horrified by Arthur's boast of vengeance. The latter, learning that Alaide is the Baron Stra dera's brother, throws himself into the lake, and the neighbours rushing in, at the cries for 'help,' seize Alaide, who seems to confess herself the cause of their death. Throughout this act, the various parts were well sustained: the tragic grief of Alaide, the imputuous love of Arthur, and noble learning of Valdeburg, found faithful representations by Briol, Lelmi, and Celestino; indeed La Straniera is to our idea the best role in which we have seen the 'prima donna.'

Act 3d begins with the trial of La Straniera before the knights-templar, for the murder of Valdeburg. Alaide declares her innocence, but refuses to disclose her name or history, whereupon Osburgo demands her condemnation; but on receiving from the other members of his friends proves her innocuce, by confessing himself the murderer. Just then Valdeburg suddenly appears, in a ghastly shroud, declaring he fell in fair fight with Arturo: presently he lays aside disguise and relates how he miraculously escape from the waters. He urges Alaide to flee with him to obscurity, is the thrilling ballad 'Ah! fuggiamo parte.' This was delightfully sung that the audience called enthusiastically for an encore. The prior (Walter) will not suffer La Straniera to depart without seeing her face, and when she uncovers to him he starts back in amaze. Arturo again goes in pursuit of his lost love (scene 9), and Valdeburg denies him access, his singing of "Ts tradisti" calling down rapturous plaudits. Madame Mollo certainly disputed the palm with Briol her performance of "Se non m'ami, and "Lieto giorno" being the bijoux of the opera.

The charming Isoletta, in the bridal dress, awaits Arturo, who has sworn to be of the wedding party, and to wed the youthful Baroness. The chorus of men and maidens at the Temple is a strange contrast with the bewildered state of the bridal party. Arturo throws aside her nuptial garland and releases him from his troth: Adelaide comes forward, reveals herself to Isoletta's dream, and leads the pair to the steps of the church. She sings "Sono all' ara" with most pathetic effect, and Arturo and Isolotta's marriage oath is pronounced within, falls senseless at the portico. Arturo rushes out of the church, and seeing Alaide, who in the Prior comes forward and announces by letter from the King the restoration of La Straniera to the queenly rights of her rival Valdeburg being dead. Arturo kills himself, and the curtain drops as Alaide exclaims "volo ci gelo de in tombs, spegne il mio amore e la mia vita." In this act Wallace acquitted himself very creditably, and Scarabelli and Chiodini not badly. The whole piece is one of the best operas we have seen in B. Ayres, and the mise en scene reflects much praise on Sor Pestalardo. The number of visitors during the audience was very great, the Boleteria having disposed of some hundreds. We are glad to announce that Verdier will be repeated to-morrow night: this rarely may serve as a libretto.

THE BOLSA ROBBERY.

The audacity of our city robbers and peptitude of the police have arrived at a culminating point, and people are divided in opinions as to the most suitable remedy to this scandalous and critical state of affairs. At one o'clock on Sunday morning the neighbors of calles San Martin and Cangallo were thrown into alarm by the indecent shouting of the 'Serenos,' who gave the locosie announcement "robbers on Change." People rushed out half dressed to the scene of action, where all was confusion, for the unfortunate police terrified old-women crouched in a corner of the portico, fearful of the daggers and pistols of an unknown number of bandits. They did not even take the precaution to close the entrance, but suffered the crowd to come in, as if to favor the escape of the robbers by mixing with the rest. But a heroic French oroker barred the gates, and at length the denouement resulted in the arrest of one of the thieves, the others of course escaping.

It was found that 57 pigeon-holes had been broken open, in which brokers sometimes leave small change but the robbers were disappointed, the booty only amounting to one doubloon and 1400 depreciated paper-dollars (worth three half-pence each). So frightened were the Serenos that they not only shrank from exploring the gloomy corridors, but refused to keep their lanterns and lances to some persons anxious to catch the thieves. At first it was feared the attempt was directed against the Maua Bank, which adjoins the rere, but this is left for a future occasion.

The gang is probably the same as that which robbed Mr. Coffin's establishment but the next attempt will be, we hope, against the Casa de Moneda, as it is not fair that private parties should pay for the criminal neglect of our authorities.

The robberies in Flores continue in full fling: we learn that the number of outrages, instead of 45 as we reported, exceeds 100. On Saturday two more gentlemen were robbed: one of them is a cousin to Sor Lainez, and he was deprived of three, watch and money, but left his clothes. Two poor fellows were stripped stark naked within a square of the new railway station, last week. A locality near the church is now jokingly called "the killing-ground," as several persons have been despatched there of late, and one is to be the robbers' rendezvous. We are told that the police not only know the robbers by appearance, but are perfectly aware of their houses and haunts: the vigilantes being only a few in number are naturally afraid to beard 80 bandits in their den, and content themselves with looking round the corner of a street and declaring "they see no robbers." Argentine Government is supinely indifferent regarding the epidemic just as an accident of weather, which comes and goes of its own accord.

We may perhaps afford to see the suburbs desolated by banditti, but the thing becomes more serious when such depredations are performed nightly in town. If possible we should treat the heroes of the Bolsa robbery to a champaign breakfast, as they have done the public a service by putting them on the qui vive, and convincing every sane man that the interests of the city would be best consulted by sending Sor Casero as horticulturist to Palermo, and converting the Policia into a Post-office.

LATEST PARTICULARS.

We have been favored, by the Manager of the Bolsa, with the following account.

About 12,30 on Saturday night, the clerk Sor Vidal who sleeps on the premises went to the brokers' counting room in search of a key which he had forgotten. On entering he was suddenly seized by the arm and his light extinguished his mouth being at once gagged. The robbers went on smashing the brokers pigeon-holes, and having taken from Mr. Vidal a sum of $1282 retired with a booty altogether amounting to $2000 (paper). The clerk soon got loose and gave the alarm, but the Serenos could find no robbers. At last some persons went to the adjoining court, where the new country house is building, and found a fellow lying at full length, who confessed he had just assaulted himself at hoose-breaking hard by. He has not disclosed who are his accomplices, and gave a false name, but has been recognised as Pedro Robido, an Italian servant, dismissed from the Bolsa some time ago for misconduct. It is reported that the robbers left their hat on board the "Willian Jackson," and three sailors of this vessel on board the Corina.

The Oriental newspapers say, with pride, that not one single National Guard, of all those summoned, was absent when the roll was called. On the 11th the body of a foreigner was found drowned. No particulars are known, and the corpse was handed over to the police.

ANSWER.

Some inquisitive party requests the 'Tribuna' to ask us if we ever travelled on the Northern Railway; although this is no business of the party's, we are of no obliging a disposition that we will answer him.

We have travelled by that line, and have been particularly struck with seeing individuals in the passenger cars whom we never expected to see any where else, but in the auto-pieces. Their complexions, naturally muddy, were rendered muddier by too strict an economy of soap and water, and the same economy would still apply to the inside parts of their attire, which might have been changed with comfort to themselves and gratification to fellow-travellers. They all appeared to have had differences with their laundresses, and to have left off washing in early youth, they however made up for this dirtiness by very loud cravats, shiny boots, and immaculate kid gloves, which, if paid for, must have left them without one dread-fast or dinner on several occasions. They derived much amusement from shouting bad cigars, and disbursing filthy language, joined playfully collaring one another sanguinary 'crudos' or 'cocidos' as the case might be. When asked by the guards for their tickets, their mean little souls were insulted, and instead of their being treated as they deserved, they were allowed to maintain their seats. Some of these Chimpanzees also got on the roof of the cars and amused themselves and annoyed the passengers by standing with their hoofs "The party who made two journeys on foot" has done no more than a correct description of his fellow creatures, with this difference that they generally are not allowed to go loose, but are obliged to carry bricks, firewood, pictures, or some other burden.

Since the 'Tribune' has opened its columns to enquiring citizens, would it please enlighten the whole town as to the upshot of the libel case brought by the Maua Bank against it?

San Juan

It appears that the epidemic of Kleptomania is fast spreading throughout the country. In San Juan, Don Ignacio Sarmiento had stolen from his estate more than a hundred mules and horses. His Upstate, in company with some peons have gone on their trail.

MONTEVIDEO

In consequence of some unknown cause, the authorities have forbidden the mask balls which were announced.

In the Montevideen newspapers we see a startling announcement, of which we were perfectly unaware previously: During the storm of Monday last, a Spanish barque, having on board a cargo of wine, was totally lost in our harbour. Is it owing to the elections, or some other cause of equal moment, that nothing was heard of her loss in Buenos Ayres.

By last accounts from the city side, up to the evening of the 7th inst., the steamer Una had not yet arrived. The Montevidean authorities are displaying most unheard of (for them) activity, in their endeavours to save their city from the 'peste.' Their example might easily be followed, with considerable profit, by the Municipality in this well-smelling city: that is, if they can possibly spare a few moments from their arduous exertions for the favor of elections.

In Pray Bentos, Flores had appointed authorities: Flores had received two eighteen pounders, and intended again making a descent on Paysandu. In the capital, the National Guards have again been called out. The 'amateur' pecuniarities of the officers of the Forte was postponed till Monday (11th) inst. Several young native gentlemen intend playing at soldiers, this time, for the same charitable object -viz., the Public and British Hospitals.

The Montevideo, the storm of last Monday seems also to have done some damage. The British ship, William Jackson, and the Spanish brig Isabella, were driven in contact, both suffered some damage. The Corina lost some of her bulwarks. The captain of the vessel was lying on the wharf, and the crew were below, in order to save her, slipped his cable, and tried to drift in shore; in doing so, the vessel came into contact with the Libertad Island. She will have to discharge her cargo. The William Jackson also sustained some damage, in consequence of which she has put in for repairs. In the confusion on board the vessels which followed the collision, the mate of the barque Isabella fell into the hold on board the "William Jackson," and three sailors of this vessel on board the Corina.

The Oriental newspapers say, with pride, that not one single National Guard, of all those summoned, was absent when the roll was called. On the 11th the body of a foreigner was found drowned. No particulars are known, and the corpse was handed over to the police.

AWFUL CHANDY.

Since the time that Francis Webber, Esquire, blew up the pump in the quadrangle of Trinity College, Dublin, there has not been such a gathering of night policemen, as there was in Calle San Martin, on Sunday morning. Upwards of seventy-two of these useful individuals had got together, and were all jabbering, much as a flock of chickens would do when a hawk appears. Like, on the night of the memorable 17th June 1816, in Brussels, they were hurrying to and fro in hot haste; every man in a state of unholy funk, as he cried out to the other the Bolsa's robbed!

The fact is, that building was really broken into, but as to its being robbed, that is improbable, as there is nothing to steal, except a loose border or two who might have gone to sleep under the blackboard—and besides, up to the time of going to press we have not heard of any broker being advertised for, and requested to return the key of the wine cellars. Three or four of them were not made their appearances since Saturday afternoon, but it is supposed that they went to the ball at Moron, and likely got their throats cut on the road home. R.I.P.

The Mazo Bank had a narrow escape, as there is only a thin partition wall between their establishment and the Bolsa.

The row kicked up by such an assemblage of Sereenos, at two o'clock in the morning, was something frightful; and we do not at all envy that vigilant watchman who first discovered the attempted robbery, as he is likely to be rewarded—oh! dear, yes! And he will know better, the next time he sees a house open, to hold his tongue.

PARAGUAY.

We have Asuncion newspapers up to the 2nd inst.

On the 27th March the inauguration of the railway as far as Guazuvirá took place in presence of the President and a large concourse of people.

The 'Semanario' announces the arrival in Asuncion of two cotton gins presented by Messrs. Drabble, Brass, of this city, in the name of the Cotton Supply Association of Manchester, to the President. The Government has established military camps of instruction in the neighbourhood of Pirayu which have been visited by the President. On Easter Sunday there was a grand reception of the Church dignitaries at the Palace.

Don Louis Miskowski, a Pole, has become a naturalized citizen of Paraguay, and Don Antonio Vasconcellos has been received as Vice-Consul for Portugal at Asuncion.

Mendoza

On the 19th ult., this rising city was visited by a slight shock of an earthquake; but no damage was done.

CONVICTS.

There seem to be some people published, after all, for according to the native papers, two have been sent to Patagones and 72 have enriched the ranks of the Argentine Army. Perhaps next year the last seventy two two will be full blown Generals. An official document has appeared, in which it is stated that three officers patrolled the highway to Flores for four hours one day last week, and found nothing stirring.

Quilmes, Moreno and Zarate are also at present being visited by robbers.

LOCAL EVENTS.

The Pueblo—The frightful scarcity-ing promised us by that newspaper, has been resolved into a semi whine at the economists misfortune in not having been born on the banks of the Thames. We were not born there, but in the small village called little Peddlington, in the neighborhood of Chusan, about 14 miles front Halifax, County Galway, Ireland. There are a few circumstances in life we understood arithmetic, but simply that he had been studying it—but we very different things. We never for one moment hinted at such an insane idea that he understood anything, even Argentine politics, and that is about the meanest thing of which we ever heard.

Canelones—The 'Reforma Pacifica' says that Canelones is a perfect hive of soldiery. On the 3d inst. Lamela's troops arrived, and on the 4th Senor Palomeque General Moreno was at the Arroyo de la Cruz, two and a half leagues to the East of Florida. On the 5th inst. Barrios marched with 600 horsemen and 200 foot. Commandante Arias is soon expected with about 150 men. On the 6th inst. news was received that Flores had passed to the East side of the Rio Negro. The Chief Politico has suspended the rations of meat which had formerly been given out to those who had relatives in the army. Moreno was about to march in the direction of Durazno.

Esporte.—On the 8th instant the Spanish brig Francisco cleared out for Matanzas with 6000 qq. jerked beef, one box tallow, 100 cowhides.

Emigrados—Since the 29th March there have arrived at this port 174 emigrants, of whom 91 were English, and 143 Italians.

San Nicolas—On the morning of the 7th inst. five jail-birds escaped from the prison of San Nicolas. Perhaps, were the authorities to make prison life more comfortable than it is at present, the culprits might be induced to remain in it. Various measures have been tried and failed; now let persuasion have its turn at experimenting.

Another Murder—In the province of Salta, on the 27th ult., Don Antonio Mendez, brother-in-law of Senor Flores of the steamer Salto was attacked on his hacienda at the Pedernal by a party under the command of Captain Gamboa, one of the rebel officers. The accusation against Mendez was his having concealed some valuable horses, to prevent their being stolen. On the horses being discovered, Mendez was barbarously treated, before his very family, and at last had his throat cut. His body was almost hewed into pieces with sabre cuts, leaving a man lately married, and leaves some 8 or 10 young children, by a former marriage.

Dockyard—We trust that our readers will excuse any unusual liveliness which may appear in our columns, as at this time (a quarter to 2 p.m., on Monday) it is out-of-the-question to write; and as the Gas Company does not turn on its gas till later in the afternoon, we are hard pushed for candles. Our having to work this particular style commonly called 'Sheffield knives and old wives,' and should a little hot weather succeed this shower, we still expect to hear good news from the camps.

Elections—On Sunday last, in several parishes, the citizens were summoned to rise in protest against the validity of the elections of 27th March.

Musting—On the 2nd instant, immediately after the arrival of the 25 de Mayo, at Corriente, which was to take the 7th of the line to Rosario, a small mutiny broke out in that corps, and before the mutineers were killed, twenty odd wounded, and some fifty or so had deserted. The motive for this riot has not been known.

IMPORTS.

Salt—The continued arrivals from Cadiz have maintained this article at a very low price, a quantity of which is our last. The saladeristas are all well supplied.

Coal—There have been some arrivals, but no improvement in price. Cardiff coal can be quoted at 9½ silver dollars the ton.

American Lumber—No change, and of difficult sale. Prices are ranging from 39 to 38 silver dollars the thousand feet.

Tiles—From Havre there has been no change; the last sale has been at 24½ silver dollars.

From Marseilles there is a superabundance, and no change in rates.

Freights—We have no improvement to note. The disposable tonnage is always out of proportion with our demand, and as the greater portion of our goods have been already shipped, our demand for shipping is very much decreased.

To-day, notwithstanding the heavy rain, there was a good deal done on the Bolsa, and a large concourse of merchantile, whose attention was of course first directed to the scene of Saturday night's burglary. Fifty-seven pigeon-holes wrenched open with a lever, some hanging on one hinge, and all rather disfigured by the operation.

Some exchange transactions are reported at 67 shillings, but latest rates were 67¼ at (60d), and the total amount drawn about £170,000, of which a large amount by Maua. The quotations on Paris are 8⅛ fra.

The terms have not transpired, and it is expected such a transaction will rather improve our paper currency than otherwise.

There is no later news about Mr. Lobre's sheep. Respecting the attack on Snr. Riesta's quinta at Flores, we learn it was exaggerated; the shots were fired by, not at, the inmates, on nearing so c nsive outside.

In freights, we hear of the Italian barque Adamo, placed on the berth for Antwerp by Messrs. H. A. Green and Co.

The shareholders of the Gas Company are very anxious to know how their affairs stand, no account having been passed, or dividend declared, for the last two years and a half. This is manifestly improper, as it is a wrong either to those who buy or those who sell such shares. Moreover, how did the question with the Municipality end, or does that body continue to levy millions of the citizens for the street-lights and pocket the money? We want an answer, and must have it, or—
